Pittsburgh Steelers The Pittsburgh Steelers are a professional American football team based in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, playing in the National Football League (NFL). They are one of the most successful franchises in the NFL, having won seven Super Bowls; the franchise has the third-best playoff winning percentage of any team that has played in the Super Bowl, and are one of only four teams in NFL history to have appeared in 10 straight postseasons (1970–1979) and won eight Super Bowls (1972, 1973, 1974, 1976, 1978, 1979, 1980, 1981) and seven straight AFC Championships (1970–1976). The Steelers play their home games at Heinz Field in the city of Pittsburgh, three miles away from the Allegheny River. As of the 2018 NFL season, the Steelers have occupied the same stadium site since 1933, including pre-merger Pittsburgh Panthers and Pittsburgh Blue Streaks. They joined the NFL in 1933 with the arrival of former college standout Mauritz Carlson. History The Steelers were first established as the Pittsburgh Americans in 1933, and then as the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1937. They played in the NFL for the first time in 1941, and were renamed the Steelers that same year. The Steelers played in the first NFL championship game, which they won in 1947, before winning their first Super Bowl in their first season in 1960. The Steelers have won seven Super Bowls, the third-most in NFL history and most in the modern era (since 1970). The Steelers started the 2009 season with a 2–3 record, becoming the first NFL team to start 2–3 since the 1974 Philadelphia Eagles. The Steelers went on a nine-game winning streak in November, losing only to the Cleveland Browns. The Browns held the Steelers to their lowest points total (11) of the season, on the road, in Cleveland. The streak went to 12 games with a win over the Green Bay Packers, then to 15 games with a win over the New England Patriots, and then the Steelers finished out the season with a loss to the Kansas City Chiefs. In 2010, the Steelers had a 10–6 record that put them in the playoff with the Indianapolis Colts. The Colts won their final three games to tie the Steelers, but won the tiebreaker at 11–5; the Colts entered the playoffs as the AFC's No. 5 seed. The Colts also entered the playoffs riding a nine-game winning streak, the longest in the NFL. The Steelers had a 10–5 record
