Who Is This Book For?The statements in this section merely provide background information related to the present disclosure and may not constitute prior art. A server machine is a type of information processing machine that manages data in a network. The server is a part of a data processing system that provides a communication environment in which users may access data stored in a server. Generally, as an operating system (OS) is provided for managing the server machine, and the OS is configured as a multithreaded operating system so that multiple processes may be executed in the server. For example, in the case of Linux, the number of processes that may be run in the server is determined by the number of available processors, that is, the number of threads which may be run. Meanwhile, as it is required to effectively utilize a system in which multiple server machines are divided and simultaneously operated, there has been developed a technology for efficiently sharing the systems between the server machines. Specifically, related art is disclosed in the following patent documents. In patent document 1, there is disclosed a system in which respective data communication functions are assigned to
